Chapter 1 by Pigletpaige

Aria was tired of the constant moving. Since her parents' tragic death almost three years ago, she had been to six different boarding schools for teens like her. She and her twin brother Caleb were here at another academy. This time, the Wright's Academy for Special Students, also known as The Wright's Institute for Students in Espionage. Aria entered the large courtyard of the institute and made her way to the main office. She was a pro at this. She'd already done this six times. The front desk had a large name tag; it read: Mrs. Hatfield.

"Mrs. Hatfield, I'm Aria. You're expecting me?"

"Oh, right. Mr. Blankenship will be here in a moment to take you to our commons area where you will be tested in several areas including detonations, planning, getaway driving, hacking, and safe cracking."

Mr. Blankenship walked in and led her to, what she realized now, was The Commons, the large field in the back of the school.

"Ms. Christansen-"

"Please call me Aria. If you do not mind, I would like my last name to stay a secret for a while."

"Of course Ms.- Aria. Now if you don't mind lets begin your tests."

Aria was led out of the school and into a large field. A metal door that simply read DETONATIONS. Mrs. Hatfield was standing in the middle of the field as a slight humming, followed by a resounding boom. The door opened and a man in a suit and tie walked out.

"Wow," Aria gasped as the door swung open. She stepped in to see boxes full of grenades and assorted bombs.
